March 29, 2019

HOBIT NEWS

Hyperbaric Oxygen Treatment Trial Newsletter

Reminder

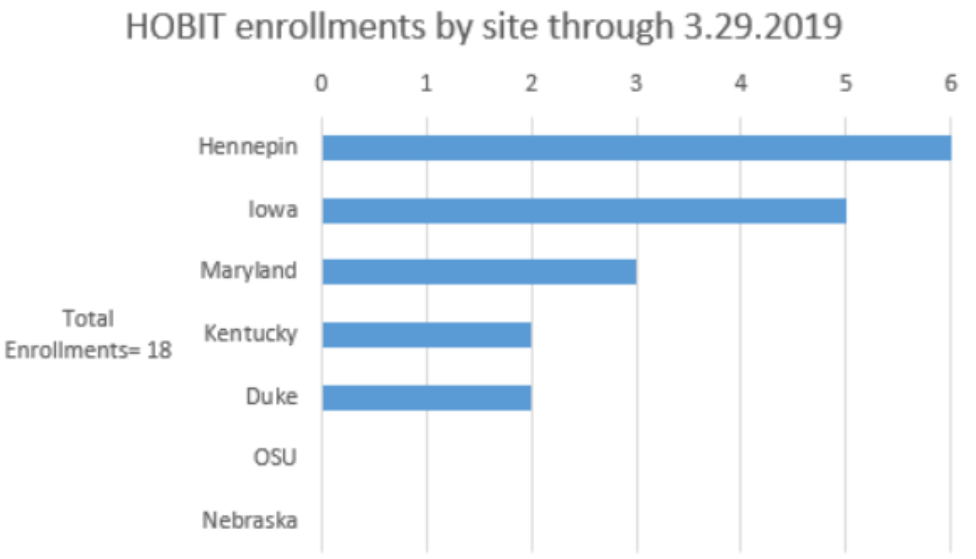
+The next NETT/ SIREN Study Coordinator Call is April 2nd at 1pm ET

Great job Duke

Congratulations to Duke University Hospital on their recent enrollment! Great work!

Way to go Maryland

Congratulations to University of Maryland Medical Center on their recent enrollment! Great job!



HOBIT Updates

Continuing Review Approved

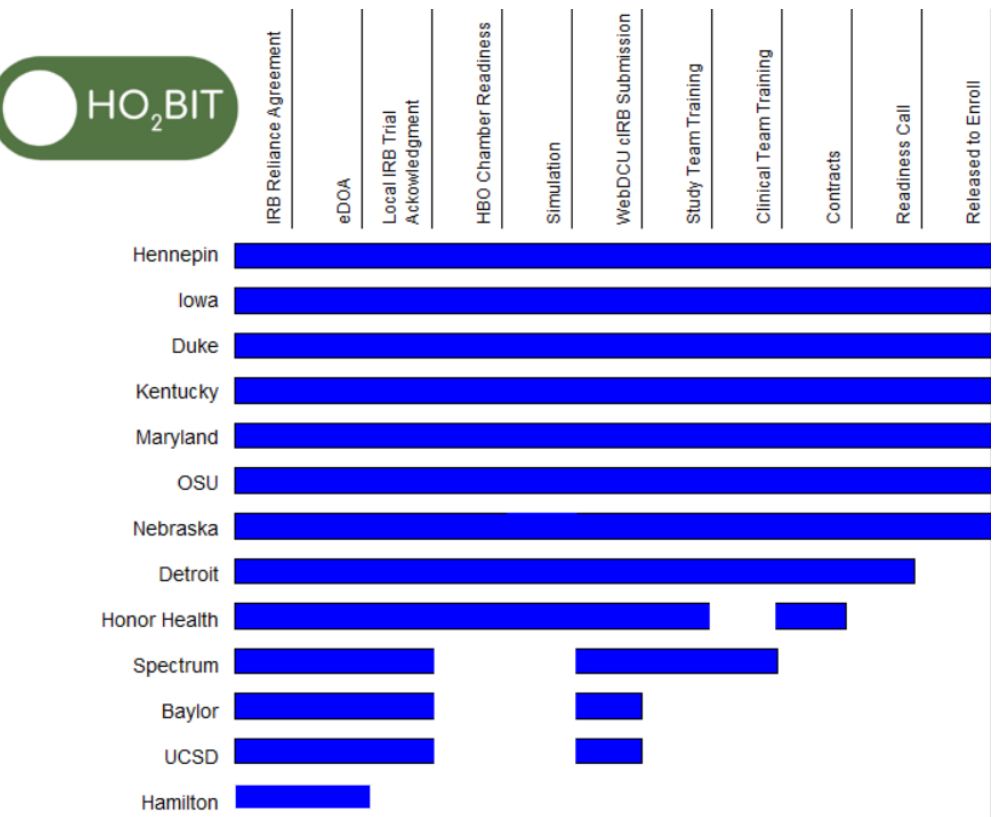
The central IRB, Advarra approved the continuing review effective March 19, 2019 to March 29, 2020. Site approval letters are available in WebDCU, under “Site IRB Approval”.

Monthly Monitoring Logs

Reminder about the monthly monitoring logs. Sites should be reaching out to the subject/LAR during the 6 months of enrollment and maintain a log of these calls. These calls are essential to maintaining contact with subjects/LAR and decreasing the likelihood of loss to follow-up at the 6 month visit. During these calls, the site should be inquiring about any adverse events and any updated contact information. The monitoring log can be found under the Study Progress tile in WebDCU. Please see the CRF Completion Guidelines and MOP for more information.

CT Imaging Repository

The image repository is close to being ready to accept CT scans. While we work to finish the final touches, we just want to ask that all sites make sure their eDOA is up to date for the CT scan responsibility delegation. Whoever will be responsible for transferring the CT scans to the imaging repository should be assigned this role. This will be important since we’ll be creating user names and passwords for the system. We’ll be sending more information about this process in the near future.

Virtual Investigator Meeting


In an effort to provide ongoing educational opportunities for HOBIT, we are planning to hold a virtual Investigator Meeting in late May or early June. Emphasis will be on protocol adherence, screening, and ongoing training of study and clinical teams. We will offer 2 time slots. The PI and Primary Study Coordinator from each site will be required to attend one of the offered times and others are welcome to attend as well. Keep an eye out for the Save the Date!